Local sites of Interest	Westown Chapel A few hundred metres to the north of the village, just off the link road to Kinnaird, stands the derelict remains of the scheduled ancient monument of Westown Chapel. Until early in 2007 the building was clothed in a progressively dense mantle of ivy. Following approaches to Perth and Kinross Heritage Trust and Historic Scotland the chapel was treated to a 'short back and sides' during March and April 2007. This was a team effort involving CoGG volunteers and PKHT staff, supported by a generous grant from PKHT. Funding for further conservation work on the chapel is being sought. Experts from Historic Scotland have been keeping a watchful eye on the proceedings. The historic background of the 16th century religious monument is currently being researched. Anyone who can shed any light on the building and its background should contact the Paths Project co-ordinator.
Special precautions	Please take care because some sections of the path cross fields that may contain farm animals or livestock. Please shut gates after use and please keep dogs under close control.
